RACE TO THE TOP—EARLY LEARNING CHALLENGE

As you may already be aware, California received a highly competitive Race to the Top—Early Learning Challenge (RTT-ELC) federal grant to improve the quality of early learning programs and close the achievement gap for vulnerable young children. Among one of the many improvements identified was for the California Department of Social Services, Community Care Licensing Division, to enhance its existing child care licensing website to include educational and training materials for parents/families and child care providers. This enhancement will occur in phases over the next two years, with completion occurring December 31, 2015.

We are reaching out to you, our stakeholders, in an effort to obtain specific information on how the child care licensing website could be improved upon and, in particular, to identify the training needs of parents, providers and other licensing website customers interested in child care.

Send an e-mail to cclp@dss.ca.gov to request a survey. Your expertise in responding to this survey is vital and greatly appreciated.

WHOOPING COUGH

Pertussis (whooping cough) is a highly contagious bacterial illness spread by coughing and sneezing. People that get sick with pertussis have severe coughing attacks that can last for months. The California Department of Public Health is recommending that all Californians make sure that they are immunized against pertussis, especially if they are in contact with infants.

Infants younger than two months of age are most susceptible to hospitalization or death from pertussis, but immunization against pertussis is not recommended until at least six weeks of age. However, infants can be protected by maternal antibodies that are transferred through the placenta. Early evidence suggests that vaccinating pregnant women with T-dap during the third trimester of pregnancy can prevent pertussis in young infants. It is recommended by the Center for Disease Control and Prevention that anyone who lives or works (e.g., parents, siblings, grandparents, childcare providers, and healthcare personnel) with infants younger than 12 months of age should receive T-dap if they have not already done so.

For more information on Pertussis visit: the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention website.

Did you know?

Over 9,100 cases of pertussis, including 10 fatal infant cases, were reported in California during 2010, the most in more than a half-century. Consistent with historical cycles of three to five years between years of higher incidence, cases are likely to increase between 2013 and 2015 in comparison to 2011 and 2012.

Recall Information

The U.S. Consumer Product Safety Commission (CPSC) advises consumers to stop using recalled products immediately unless otherwise instructed. In addition, it is illegal to resell or attempt to resell a recalled consumer product.

It is the responsibility of the licensee to ensure the health and safety of all children in their care. Licensees are to follow manufacturer labels and adhere to all recall instructions provided by the CPSC. Licensees may visit the CPSC website and subscribe to receive recall alerts on consumer products.

CACFP Day Care Home Sponsors

List of California day care home (DCH) operating sponsors can be found at Child and Adult Care Food Program (CACFP).

CACFP provides reimbursement for nutritious meals and snacks served to small groups of children receiving nonresidential day care in licensed or approved private homes. A day care home must sign an agreement with a sponsor to participate in CACFP. The sponsor organizes training, conducts monitoring, and helps with planning menus and filling out reimbursement forms.

Did you know?

Beginning January 1, 2014, parents or guardians who, because of personal beliefs, do not want their children to receive one or more immunizations required for entering school or child care must provide documentation specified by a new state law, also known as Assembly Bill 2109.

Additional information about this new law designed for parents, health care practitioners and schools is now available at www.shotsforschool.org, including:

- A standardized exemption form that meets the requirements of Assembly Bill 2109.
- Frequently asked questions about the new law.

The California Department of Public Health will continue to update the ShotsForSchool.org website into 2014. For more information, questions or comments, please email info@shotsforschool.org.

UPDATES

GLUTEN FREE

The Food and Drug Administration \(FDA\) recently finalized the definition of the term "gluten-free" on food labels, which means all manufacturers that want to use that phrase on their products must adhere to strict guidelines.

As stated by the FDA, the term gluten-free now refers to foods that are either inherently gluten-free or foods that do not contain any ingredient that is:

- A gluten-containing grain (e.g., spelt wheat)
- Derived from a gluten containing grain that has not been processed to remove gluten (e.g., wheat flour)
- Derived from a gluten-containing grain that has been processed to remove gluten (e.g., wheat starch), if the use of that ingredient results in the presence of 20 parts per million (ppm) or more gluten in the food

Additionally, any unavoidable presence of gluten in the food must be less than 20 ppm.

The ruling benefits more than three million Americans who live with celiac disease, an immune reaction to gluten that damages the lining of the small intestine.

The gluten-free ruling applies to all FDA-regulated foods and dietary supplements, but excludes foods whose labeling is regulated by the U.S. Department of Agriculture and the Alcohol and Tobacco Tax and Trade Bureau. Manufacturers have one year to make package labels compliant.

Provider E-mail Blasts

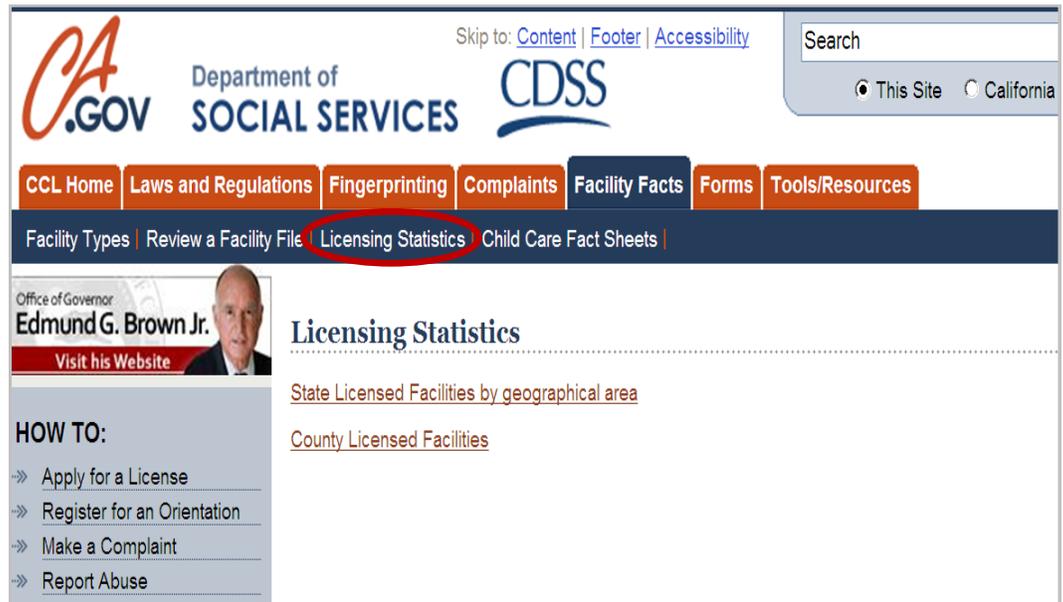

A faster way to get you the information you need!

The Licensing Program Analysts (LPAs) in the Child Care Program will be calling licensees soon to ask that licensee's provide their e-mail addresses if they have an e-mail account. Community Care Licensing Division (CCLD) will be establishing an e-mail recipient list using these addresses to send out e-mail news such as Information Releases, Implementation Plans for new laws, quarterly newsletters, and other important information. Using e-mail will allow CCLD to provide this information in a less costly and more timely way to licensees who provide an e-mail address and who report any change to their e-mail address to their LPA. During these calls, your LPA may also ask you about any other changes to your license in an effort to better serve you.
